Woodlea Word

“It always seems impossible until it is done.” Nelson Mandela

Across the Woodlea community over the last week, people have been tested to their limits, put outside their comfort zones. First up, we have Miss Maher who completed the London Marathon on Sunday. Staff were cheering her on at the race, others tracked her on the app and some remained glued to the television waiting to spot her cross the finish line. It is such an amazing achievement to complete a marathon and is a perfect example to our children to show that despite some tasks seeming impossible at the start, you can overcome it with determination and support from our community. Well done Miss Maher for all the money you have raised for charity and for completing this challenge.

Year 4 have embarked on their own adventure this week that will also test their limits; Carrot Wood Residential. The children will have scaled dauntingly tall walls, preserved through the British weather and taken on responsibilities by helping prepare and clean their living quarters. All these elements are designed to test and develop our children through enriching experiences which will help our young people grow into confident and resilient pupils. They will return exhausted and probably still a bit muddy too but I know they would have had a wonderful experience with memories that will last. (I know this because last year's Year 4 regularly remind me of the random things we got up to like 'Freeze' - they know what I'm talking about.) Thank you to all the adults who have given up their time this week to facilitate this trip - trips like this cannot happen unless we have staff who will go the extra mile and we are very lucky to have such a committed team who provide these opportunities.

Another thank you is to those parents who have been very generous and already bought items off the Outdoor Amazon Wishlist. I turned up on Monday to find a package of new compasses and multiple emails from parents offering their help which was so lovely to receive. Thank you to all those that have contributed their time and money already to this project. If anyone is still wanting to contribute to the Outdoor area, or any other class for that matter, head down to the bottom where you'll find links to the Wish Lists with various things that you can contribute to.

Have a lovely weekend, Mr Cole

Road Safety Magic Show:

On Monday the Infants were treated to a Road Safety Magic Show. The show gave important road safety messages through magic, comedy and puppets. The children seemed to really enjoy it.
